Doings At Petersburg

Last Saturday's steamer brought north J. P. Jolly, the insurance adjuster for the companies sustaining losses in the recent fire at Petersburg, who, as he was going south on the return trip of the same boat, informed the Sentinel he was satisfied that there would be no delay in paying the losses. As announced in last week's Sentinel the work of erecting the new buildings to take the place of those destroyed is under way, though retarded badly by the lack of suitable building material.

J. P. Miller, who was elected municipal magistrate by the Petersburg town council, has been appointed United States Commissioner at Petersburg, and took the oath of office and qualified recently. The next move on the part of those interested in law and order will be to get some kind of a jail building erected. At this time there is no way of holding prisoners.

Rasmus Enge is erecting a restaurant and rooming house across the street from his residence.

The high price now offered for halibut on the Sound has had the effect of hustling the fishermen in their preparations for the winter fishing. The latest word from the south states that halibut is now in good demand at five cents, and owing to the high price of meat, the impression is that fish will command good figures all winter. The first shipment of any size was on the Seattle last Sunday, when upwards of seventy boxes started south.

Order Your Milk By Phone

N. L. Moen, the hustling milkman, was in receipt Saturday, of the instruments and material for the telephone line he is about to construct between the Wrangell Hotel and his dairy. Then when anybody needs milk or cream in a hurry they can use the phone and thus save themselves that long walk out to the dairy.

The recent freshets have just about put an end to gillnetting for this year.

More Praise For The Iskut

J. A. Hart, an old time miner of the Ketchikan district, now making his headquarters at Stewart City, is the latest convert to the wonderful possibilities of the Iskut mining region. In the interests of the monied people he now represents, he made a trip up the river in company with George Lucca and Alec Vreatt, returning a few days ago, and is certainly an enthusiastic booster of the district. Mr. Hart is thoroughly capable of viewing the country and the ores there as an expert, and to the Sentinel man he made the statement that he believed it would turn out to be every bit as good a country as the Portland canal region now creating such a stir in mining circles.

In part he said: "Yes, it is a great mineral belt, and if it develops as well as it now promises, Wrangell's future as a supply point for it is assured. Of course the main trouble is that so little systematic development work has been done as yet, but next year will see that difficulty remedied I imagine."

Mr. Hart left on the Jefferson for Ketchikan, but will probably return within the next few days.

Hallow E'en Masquerade

Arrangements are in the making for a big Hallow E'en Masquerade ball, at Redmen's Hall, Saturday night, October 29. Elegant prizes will be presented, and the music the best obtainable.

New Jail For Wrangell

It is to be hoped that the following, appearing in a recent issue of the Juneau Dispatch, is true.

"Wrangell is to have a new U. S. jail building. During the visit of Attorney General Wickersham at Wrangell, he inspected the old building and promptly decided that it was too old for further use."

If there is a public building in the whole of the district that is in worse shape than the United States jail at this place, this paper has still to hear of it. The thanks of this locality are due the Attorney-General for his decision in this respect.

Dr. and Mrs. Shurick and Jack Collins report great luck fishing at Pat's creek, Tuesday afternoon.

Gorman's cannery, Heckman Trading Co.'s store, and several other buildings at Kasaan were destroyed by fire early last week. The loss was over $150,000.

Truthful Historians Needed

It would appear that in the future hunting parties going out to the flats should do one of two things, either rehearse their stories together before returning to town so that there will be a similarity, at the very least, in the tales the different members tell, or else duly elect one of their number as historian, and refer all questions pertaining to the happenings on the trip to him for answer. The need of something of the kind was apparent this week upon the return of Bill Downing Darbey Choquette, Frank Adams and Fred Gushe from a three day hunting trip. They all agree that they started, and everybody knows that they got back, but outside of these two facts—extremes—it were a hard thing to figure out what actually happened. Bill and Frank tell of being marooned on a snag all night and being so thirsty, owing no doubt to the amount of salt in the air occasioned by their being surrounded by salt water, that they caught rain in Frank's hat for drinking purposes—Bill's head covering being aboard the boat, and just as one is recovering his breath after listening to the harrowing details, Darby comes along and injects a big doubt by saying that their clothes were perfectly dry when they got back to camp the next morning. Then after thus shattering your hope in the other fellow's story, Darby proceeds to spin a hair-raising yarn about the adventures of himself and partner, which Bill in turn gives the black-eye to by saying there isn't a word of truth in it. Hence it is that we make the suggestion that an official historian is really more important to a hunting party than is ammunition, wet or dry.

Charley Bryant and Charley Borch were up from their saltery this week with a consignment of salmon bellies.

Father Sweere held services at the Catholic Church, Sunday.

NOT SO EASY AFTER ALL

The seventeen states between the Appalachians and the Rocky mountains, north of Kentucky, Tennessee and Arkansas, and including Missouri and Oklahoma, were represented in Congress last winter by 101 Republicans and 46 Democrats—a total of 147 in a membership of 391. The remaining states of the Union were represented by 118 Republicans and 126 Democrats.

Clearly, then, so far as the house of representatives is concerned, the middle west is the stronghold of the Republican party. It is also the stronghold of insurgency. Upon this state of things the insurgents base their calculations of dominating the next congress. They expect to sweep the middle west, thus securing the control of the Republican organization, and then through it, of Congress itself.

In the Senate, consisting of 92 members, there are 58 Republicans and 34 Democrats. Of the Republicans, 28 come from the middle west. The terms of 12 of these middle west senators will expire next March and successors will have been elected before that time to take their places.

But the mathematical fact remains that if the middle west elected a solid delegation of insurgent Republican senators and representatives to congress, the insurgents would still lack a majority. In the lower house they would still lack nine men; in the upper house, they would have less show of control than the Democrats.

These figures are worth keeping in mind. Reform within the Republican party, after the recent years of autocratic rule, will be welcomed by none more gladly than by the average Republican. But the middle west, which is making all the noise, cannot do it alone. It has not the votes.

And while the middle west insurgents are counting their majorities at this time, it is wise to be prepared for Democratic gains at the same time, which in not a few cases will outnumber the gains of the insurgents. In fact, the outlook for a democratic house of representatives after March 4 next, is not at all gloomy.—Ex.

THE ROAD TO RENO

(Judge)
I remember when I met her;
It was in the long ago.
It was on the road to Reno
Somewhere east of Kokomo.
It was in the glad some springtime,
And the tulips were aglow.
It was in the glad some springtime,
In the spring of long ago.
I was going, she was coming;
She had shaken off her woe,
It was on the road to Reno.
Where the almonies grow.
"Tarry for a while," I murmured,
"For I'll soon be back, you know.
Wait until I've burst my bondage."
This I whispered soft and low,
But she shook her wavy tresses,
As she gaily answered no.
It was on the road to Reno,
Where the merry widows grow,
Where the widowers ex lege
Softly come and softly go—
On the road unknown to husbands
Who remain in statu quo.

The Seward Commercial club wants Seward made the starting point for the surveyors who will survey Alaska, the $100,000 necessary for the work having been appropriated by Congress.

John Quinn, a soldier from Fort Gibbon, is confined to the guardhouse in the fort, suffering from brain trouble. Quinn is quite a marvel as a racer and it is racing that brought on his present trouble.

Charles Ward, an old time prospector from Whitehorse, has sold his interest in the Anaconda claim for $4,000.

Webster's NEW INTERNATIONAL Dictionary, (G. & C. Merriam Co., Springfield, Mass.) surpasses the old International as much as that book exceeded its predecessor. On the old foundation a new superstructure has been built. The reconstruction has been carried on through many years by a large force of trained workers, under the supervision of Dr. W. T. Harris, former United States Commissioner of Education, and reinforced by many eminent specialists. The definitions have been rearranged and amplified. The number of terms defined has been more than doubled. The etymology, synonyms, pronunciation, have received unsparing scholarly labor. The language of English literature for over seven centuries, the terminology of the arts and sciences, and the every-day speech of street, shop, and household, are presented with fullness and clearness. In size of vocabulary, in richness of general information, and in convenience of consultation, the book sets a new mark in lexicography.

400,000 words and phrases.
